

Andrea Davis, MBA, CPC

I'm a woman who is passionate about helping other women live beyond their self imposed limits.

As a woman of faith, I know we are called to LIVE with clarity, purpose, and meaning. But for some of us getting clarity in life, understanding our purpose, and living a life that's meaningful and exciting isn't that easy and we have no idea where to even start.

My passion lies in providing others with the tools necessary to build a roadmap to access the keys to live the more fulfilled life they've been dreaming of.

Coaching is not one sided, it's a partnership where we focus on what is in you that can take you to where you want to be and remove what is holding you back. The focus is on what you really want in your next season of life and the strategies to get you there.

Making the mindset shift to live in your purpose, bringing meaning to your very special gifts and talents, and designing a life of significance and impact in the arena you are called to serve is difficult enough, so let's make the journey fun!

As an international speaker and author with 35 years of corporate experience, who decided to step outside of what I was familiar with and master new things I was passionate about; I know a thing or two about making the shift and major life transitions and avoiding the pitfall that leads to stagnation and keeps one from living the fullest life possible. I'm now living the life I dreamed of. And I want to help you do the same. Let's get you to living a life you love.

It's your time to stop just surviving and start living.